American People Demand Settlement of Three Big Issues Declares Senator From Tennessee.

BY CHAS, S. HAYDEN, (Staff Correspondent,) ASHINGTON, Aug. 19—The dilato lies of Republican leaders in mes ng the three great leaves which the American people demand shall be settled at the earliest possible moment were roundly condemned by Senstor McKellar when he digressed from the prepared text of his speech before the Senate last Wednesday on the question of food atorage.

and it, except the reading of the y in the senate committee on for-relations. The whole country is while the treaty is slowly read, business men of this country, the a people of this country, want acon the treaty. They wapt to be ored to normal times. There is not mater here who does not know how is going to vote on that treaty, ere is no reason for keeping the sple of the country in a state of unit. Business wants to know what is ing to happen. Financial men want e matter settled, All people want to now what they are going to do, and tey are criticizing the senate because its delay. The delay has been too mg. It is time we should get rid of he treaty, I say we ought to vote or the treaty. I say we ought to vote or the treaty. I say we ought to take up thes lomestic questions—questions like the high cost of living. We all understant where we have the profit

"We are entirely too dilatory. We need action upon this greatest of all domestic questions, action upon this tremendous cost of food to the people. It meets every man, woman and child in the country face to face every day. The senate is dilatory; the senate investigates, and the senate debates. The eenate adjourns for a day or days at a time. The house adjourns for days at a time. No real business is being done in either house, and the country is standing still while we delay here. It is an unpardonable eituation. Let us put an end to talking. Let us put an end to investigation, and let us get down to business and pass these measures that we know are going to be passed. We ought to pass them in 30 days and leave here. There is no reason in the world why the peace treaty should be delayed. There is no reason in the world why the railroad question should be delayed. There is no reason in the world why this cold-storage question should be delayed. There is no reason in the world why the sold-storage question should be delayed. am prepared to vote, and 1 am for voting on all these measures. The best way, if we have difference among ourselves, is to vote them down or vote them up. We can not settle them except by voting. Let us get to the voting stage and earn the praise and commendation of the American people, and we will do it if we will take active steps, and if we do not take active steps, and if we do not take active steps, and if we do not take active steps we are going to be held responsible for the conditions which must necessarily arise by lack of action or by delay in action, by the continuous story of investigation, by the continuous story of one side abusing the other—Democrats abusing. Republicans for this thing and that thing and the other thing and Republicans abusing Democrats for not having done this, that, or the other. The people are not interested in whether Republicans get the advantage for next year's election or whether the Democrats get the advantage for next year's election or whether the Democrats get the advantage. These three questions are all important to them: They want this country put on a peace hasis. They want the railroads restored and regulated, and, finally, they want the high cost of living reduced and the hoarders and profiteers punished.

"We are all Americans. If we have differences of opinion let us get together here in the senate and settle those differences of opinion let us get together here in the senate and settle those differences of opinion let us get together here in the senate and settle those differences of opinion let us get together here in the senate thave been asked the question if a law passed for war time only ought not to be enforced, with the evident purpose of trying to throw the biame on the president of the United States. We all know there is no law in force, and our quibbling about it gives the treatest pleasure to our packer friends, our monopolistic friends, our mortiestring friends, for they do not want to fan the fiames of

Fresh Pure Country

There are no cows at the Clover Farm Dairy. While our plant is in the heart of the city, our product is from the country. We deal only in Pure Country Milk. This milk is shipped to us daily from the country districts. It comes to us in air-tight cans. Every one of these cans is sterilized before the milk is put into it.

All of these dairies from which we receive our milk are supervised in the matter of sanitation and careful handling both of the cows and the milk, by the Board of . Health of the City of Memphis.

A sample of milk is taken daily from every can that we receive, and the milk is not accepted for use until this sample has been passed upon by our own chemist. We are thus absolutely assured of the purity and quality of the milk, so that we may in turn guarantee it to our customers.

To further insure the welfare of our patrons every gallon of milk that we sell is clarified and pasteurized. The bottles into which it is poured for delivery are sterilized, and they are filled and capped by machinery. Human hands do not touch them until they are ready for delivery by our drivers.

When you buy Clover Farm Dairy Milk, therefore, you are getting pure country milk under the best possible conditions that it could be brought to your door.

NATION-WIDE TOY SHOW SCHEDULED FOR CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Aug. 19 .- Preparations are now under way for the holding of a nation-wide toy exhibit at the Art in-season of the year will, or course, be an honor guest at the exposition. It is intended by the exhibit to create at added interest in the art of designing and making toys in the various art, industrial and manual training schools of the country and to encourage the model maker and the inventor by putting them in touch with the buyer and manufacturer, for the purpose of making better toys.

The exhibits are to be judged and the most meritorious selected by a committee of artists and educators together with a representative of the toy manufacturers of the country.

Besides the modern toys, those of other generations will be shown; dois and doil houses that anused children years ago and that have been carefully preserved by their loving owners. Many of these toys of other days, it is declared, have advantages not possessed by similar playthings of recent manufacture.

"Toys as a factor in education have by similar playthings of recent manufacture.

"Toys as a factor in education have received very little attention," said Mrs. Louis D. Cole, chairman of the committee in charge. "Even the most earnest students of childhood have seldom thought of them in that light and only recently has it been recognised that self-expression through playthings brings into action a child's most vital forces—imagination and initiative—and that it is the best way of organizing his instincts for his own progress."

In addition to the impetus it is hoped to give the making of toys in schools and the larger factories, it is hoped to interest the individual craftsman who may find through it a profitable market for his wares. Large manufacturers of toys will be exabled to judge the demands and the tendencies, and it is hoped the exhibit will result in a distinct forward step for a large industry.
